

Persuasive Monologue Example
Character: Cell Membrane

I have a very important job; in my opinion, it is the most important job of all the cell organelles. I am the cell membrane. I am thin and mighty, filled with protein and fat. I surround the perimeter of the entire cell! I patrol lots of territory, and I am the best of the best at my job. First off, I am semi-permeable, which means I allow some substances to pass into the cell, and the substances that could harm or hurt the cell, I block out. I am the security guard of the cell and, without me, this cell would not be secure or safe from the outside. I take my job very seriously when I determine what I want to allow into the cell and what I want to kick out to the curb. Without me, I am not sure the cell could survive. I have to turn away all sorts of foreign harmful things that would make your skin crawl! The nucleus trusts that I will do my job to make his directing of future functions smooth and we can continue to run a tight ship on this cell we all live and work in.
