We bring learning to life.

Hello friends!

January is such an exciting time of year, isn't it? The season of new beginnings! These are the days when we can dust ourselves off and start anew.

As educators are returning back to their schools and classrooms, we hope you had a wonderful, relaxing, and rejuvenating winter break. May this year be marked by inspiration, growth, and discovery!

Here at ArtsNOW, we're bursting with excitement for the opportunities this year holds. We're especially eager for our first big event of 2024 - the second annual Principals' Network Conference, February 8-9 in Greenville, South Carolina.

We're expecting a large turnout so if you're thinking of joining us, don't wait to save your spot! Register here! Anyone who signs up before January 10th will also receive a special gift!

We hope to see you all there, and cheers to another amazing year!

Sincerely,

Why Being Uncomfortable is a Good Thing!

It's no secret that arts-integrated learning can get uncomfortable! Why?

Because students are expected to stand up from behind their desks, act, dance, sing, present their art, and participate actively in their learning!

It creates a dynamic environment that many students - and educators - aren't used to! In no time, however, your students will be smiling, laughing, and getting comfortable with the uncomfortable. Once they do, magic happens!

DISCOVER THE MAGIC

Meet Our Superstars: The Principals!

With our Principals' Network Conference coming up in February, we're spotlighting the amazing work done by all the principals at ArtsNOW's partnership schools.

Since we first began, ArtsNOW has collaborated with over 500 hardworking and passionate principals. They're an impressive group of individuals who empower their educators, support their students, and ensure their schools are a safe and innovative space to learn.

Help us in recognizing all the principals making education a bright spot in the world! Principals, we see your hard work and we thank you for all you do!

Make Your Next Faculty Meeting Fun!

Principals, this one is for you!

Bring the fun to your faculty meetings with arts-inspired learning techniques! Activate your educators and get them excited to participate by implementing one of our "new digital ideas" found in our resource section. A favorite is our improv strategy which can be done in one large group, smaller groups, or pairs. Your faculty meetings will never be the same!

Ready to transform your next meeting using improvisation strategies?
